

Abortion and the Great Man

By Emily Ray (Steve's 12 year old daughter)

Once upon a time, there was a man who did a great thing; everybody loved him and knew about him. He was elected President and was the best one ever, and he did some things no other man had ever done. He had a wonderful talent, he was the best violin player, and he was the best one at math and wrote ten of the best books in the world. But most of all he cared for everybody he saw, he went to church everyday and prayed for everybody he could think of every single day. He fed and clothed the poor and comforted the sick; and he loved his family. Can you guess who this is? No one knows who, because he was aborted 20 years ago.
